B. BUSINESS ARISING FROM PREVIOUS MEETINGS

Draft Communications Plan from John Matsui

- Peter Glen reported on the Draft Communications Plan that was submitted by John Matsui. The Plan was distributed to all members before this meeting.
 - Peter had a number of conference calls with John Matsui
 - The plan is very comprehensive however would appear to be too aggressive for this organization at this time. Peter has concerns about its impact on human resources.
 - There is a need for much more discussion about the recommendations
- General discussion included the following:
 - Agreement that there is a lot of good things in the report and that there is a need to prioritize and get started. Identify what we can do now.

- Peter Glen recommended that the Board work at improving the effectiveness of the web site.
 - Jim Friend agrees that there is a need to make the appearance of the website more professional and indicated that the Board needs to invest in this project.
 - Norm Lambert complimented Jim Friend on all of his efforts being the web master for OAB.
 - Tom Paniak advised that he knows of 2 companies that would design a web site for free. In return we would acknowledge their efforts on the website. He will investigate further. These companies also provide “hosting” services.
 - Jim Friend added that Mountain Cable Vision hosts our site for free. Also, our domain name expires on October 27th and Jim has been dealing with Tucows regarding the renewal however there are a number of issues that have arisen, including the fact that there was no formal change of our webmaster from Bill Bouwhuis to Jim Friend. This service is $20.99 per year and once the dialogue with Tucows is completed a cheque will be issued.
- Judy Broomfield summarized the discussion with the following three action items:
 1. Further discussions with John Matsui regarding how much of the report can be proceeded with.
 2. Resolve domain name issue.
 3. Proceed with a new website design
- Tom Paniak will obtain further information about the web designers
- Peter Glen will go back to John Matsui and discuss what the Board has talked about
- Judy Broomfield requested the sub-committee to look at the website design issue first.

Wireless & Nomadic Technologies

WIRELESS

- Judy Broomfield reports:
 - In February 2009 the CRTC directed wireless carriers to accomplish Stage 1 of Phase II by February, 2010
 - Provides a single xy coordinate with each cellular call
 - Standard format that all PSAPs and Secondary PSAPs can use
 - Carriers directed to pay for it themselves
 - Sub working groups deciding on how to achieve February 2010
 - Deployment schedules being developed, emphasis on not hitting the same area at the same time for testing/deployment
 - Broadcast Circular sent to PSAPs re the schedules. PSAPs requested to keep Secondary PSAPs informed
 - As each carrier goes into a territory the sites are left live when completed
 - No roamers included
 - Non-subscribed handsets not included
 - Location updates are in Stage 2 of Phase II (some time in 2010)
 - A rebuild of the PERS platform will be required for S2PII as the current platform is not set up to make dynamic changes to the X/Y coordinates. Bell is working on this.
 - Every cell site to be tested (max,. 100 calls per day)
 - Testing not only to confirm technology from carrier’s end but also to test PSAP mapping issues, etc.

- Only primary PSAPs being contacted/tested in Ontario. PSAPs need to communicate with downstream agencies.
- Two more wsp's are coming on line – Wind Wireless and Public Mobile. They will have to meet the February
- Tom Paniak advised that they have contacted all secondary agencies that have CAD systems and have provided them with the Bell Canada schedule.

VoIP

- Peter Glen advises that a Canadian “i2” solution is being looked at to deal with VoIP
 - NENA recognizes the fact that “VoIP is poised to become the predominant technology used in the telecommunications industry” and has produced their Standard: “Interim VoIP Architecture for Enhanced 9-1-1 Services (i2)” to address compatibility issues with current 9-1-1 platforms.
 - VoIP providers have indicated that it is too expensive.
 - CRTC will have to make a decision -- perhaps by year-end.
